VIOLENT BLAST IN LOS ANGELES INJURES 40

Chicago Gangsters Take Victim for a 'Ride'

SHOOT MAN IN MOUTH, TOSS BODY INTO AN ALLEY

CROOKED STREET, NEAR WHERE BODY WAS FOUND, IS ON NORTHWEST SIDE

WIFE OF "RIDE" VICTIM REFUSES ANY INFORMATION ABOUT HUSBAND

Chicago, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A man, apparently "taken for a ride" by Chicago gangsters and his body flung into an alley just off Crooked Street was identified today as Howard R. Smith, who formerly lived in Madison, Wis.

The identification was made through fingerprints which tallied with bureau of identification records here on Smith who was arrested last January in Whitehall, Wis., and charged stealing a drive-it-yourself automobile from a Chicago firm.

The victim was identified later as Howard R. Smith of Madison, Wis.

Police discredited the theory that gang warfare was responsible for the slaying. They believed that jealousy over a love affair was the motive.

Police also were checking the possibility that the "ride" victim might also have been known by the name of Harold Fox, who abandoned a wife and child in Beaver Dam, Wis., recently and hasn't been heard from since.

Smith, according to police records, was brought back to Chicago after being arrested in Whitehall and released on $3,000 bond on larceny charges. Later, the records revealed, the case was never pressed before Judge Peter Schwaba.

Smith's body was found early today in an alley off a northwest side street that bears the ironic name, Crooked. He had been shot through the back of the head, the bullet emerging through the mouth. He appeared to be about 28 years old.

In the pockets of the victim was found a hotel receipt made out to "Roy Bell" and he was tentatively identified as a Roy Bell who has a police record. Later the fingerprints were taken and compared to the records and the identity Howard R. Smith arrived at.

Another hotel receipt led the police to a second lodging house where they arrested Helen Torino, who first said she was Mrs. Roy Bell.

She said that a friend of Smith's, Billy Lamarr, had threatened to kill both of them. Police immediately started a hunt for Lamarr.

Lamarr showed me a pistol recently. "Miss Torino admitted, "and said he would kill both of us because Harold was running around with me. I used to run around with Lamarr."

She admitted Smith was a holdup man and had been out plying his trade last night.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Gangsters took another victim for a "ride" today, shot him through the mouth, then tossed his body into an alley just off Crooked Street.

The man appeared to have been about 28 years old. In his pockets, police found a receipt from a Chicago hotel made out to a Roy Bell.

It was learned that on June 1 a man who gave his name as William Bell and his address as Beaver Dam, Wis., checked out of the hotel. Police believed the dead man might be Bell.

The officers also found in the man's pockets keys to another hotel, where they went and arrested Helen Bell, 18, who said she was the wife of the "ride" victim.

Mrs. Bell refused to tell anything about her husband, where he had lived or what his occupation had been. They had been registered at the hotel for three days.

Crooked Street, near which the gangsters so appropriately left the victim's body, is on the northwest side.

Japanese Ratification of Naval Treaty Placed Aboard Liner Leviathan

New York, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—The Japanese ratification of the London naval treaty, rushed across the continent in a speedy air trip which cost the life of an army flier, was placed aboard the liner Leviathan, today, for the last leg of its journey.

The document will be used in a formal ceremony at London putting into effect the naval arms limitation agreement between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

Lieut. Irving A. Woodring landed at Roosevelt Field, L. I., with the document last night, after a transcontinental flight from Victoria, B. C.

His flight companion, Lieut. W. W. Caldwell, who carried a duplicate of the ratification in his plane, crashed near Cheyenne, Wyoming, in a snowstorm Wednesday and was killed.

Woodring managed to get through the storm after two forced landings and yesterday pressed on, urged by the necessity to get the paper in New York by Saturday, when the Leviathan sails.

PARTY DRAGS RIVER FOR DROWNED HUNTER

Riverton Man Near Death Here From Exposure as Search Conducted for Companion's Body

JOHN JACKSON, VICTIM

Mill District Carpenter Drown's Near Green's Point When Duck Boat Overturns

Stern faced men patrolled the Mississippi river at Green's Point, north of Marquis hill, about nine miles north of Brainerd today, their faces bitten by lashing snow, scouring the bleak shores of the river and gazing into murky water for the body of John Jackson, 45 year old Mill district carpenter, who drowned when the boat he was hunting ducks from overturned Thursday shortly after 3 p. m.

His companion, Harold Dobson, of Riverton, fiancée of the drowned man's daughter, lies near death on a bed at the home of Jackson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell Stanley, 1620 9th avenue N. E., suffering from exposure and fright from his terrifying experience.

Near collapse Dobson told in disjointed form yesterday afternoon of the overturning of the boat, of Jackson's disappearance, of his own experience in battling the cold water in an attempt to locate his friend and then of dragging himself up on the shore, unable to rise for minutes before plunging through the woods to where their car was located. He tried for a long time to start the car and then finally made his way to Brainerd to announce the sad news.

So weakened and nervous was Dobson that he was unable to give relatively accurate information as to the location where the boat overturned. He was ordered to bed by a physician with the instructions that he was not to be disturbed. It is feared that pneumonia may set in.

At Jackson's home in Northeast Brainerd, Mrs. Jackson and her daughter Margaret are consoled in their grief by neighboring women whose husbands have joined in the search for the body. The drowned man's son, Robert, is among the party searching the river today. Two brothers-in-law, L. A. Schwendener, 1003 N street N. E. and Cromwell Stanley, lead the search party.

The search for the body today appeared almost futile because of the fact that it is feared that the body may have floated down the river into French Rapids.

A searching party was hurriedly formed when first news of the drowning came to Brainerd. The party traveled by cars to Green's Point but were unable to conduct an extensive search because of darkness. The searchers took into consideration today the possibility that the body may have been washed ashore at the large overflow up the river and there was too the possibility that Jackson may have fought his way to the shore and dropped from utter exhaustion.

From what little information could be gained from Dobson, the Riverton man apparently swam about in the cold water for what seemed to him to be hours, searching here and there for his friend. When his efforts failed, he desperately battled the waves and in an exhausted state reached the shore.

The fatality is the first from drowning in the present duck hunting season in this locality.

Up to 3 p. m. today the body of John Jackson had not been recovered from the Mississippi river. His hunting cap however was found floating near where two oars from the boat were also found. The boat was located submerged.

Dragging operations will continue until darkness prevents continuing any longer tonight. Friends of the victim are determined to search for the body until it is found.

KIDNAPING SUSPECT IS QUESTIONED

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A suspect, fitting the description given by Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, Greenfield, Mo., as the man who kidnapped her, was questioned by police here today.

The man, who said he was Raymond Rizzo, 21, of New York, was arrested here last night. He has scars on his face and right hand, police said.

The man who kidnapped Mrs. McKinley was scarred similarly.

Rizzo denied connection with the crime.

MISS LAURA INGALLS LANDS AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Miss Laura Ingalls, enroute from California to New York in an attempt to establish a new west-to-east airplane speed record for women, landed at Port Columbus at 12:10 p. m. today from Indianapolis.

LAST CURTAIN OF "LAST MILE" IN DEATH ROW

RUNG DOWN ON TRUE LIFE IN HUNTSVILLE, TEXAS, TODAY

JOYCE SHEPARD EXECUTED FOR MURDER OF A PEACE OFFICER

Huntsville, Texas, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—The last curtain of "The Last Mile," a Broadway drama of Death Row in a penitentiary with men condemned to die as the characters, was rung down in true life here today.

Joyce Shepard, maddened murderer whose frenzied cries of "Jones, Oh Jones," were echoed in the play that thrilled New York audiences, was executed at the Texas state penitentiary at 12:11 A. M. for the murder of a peace officer two years ago. He was pronounced dead six minutes later.

Shepard, cell mate of Robert Blake, who, while awaiting execution for murder, penned a death cell piece that was enlarged into "The Last Mile," went to his death blinded. Two weeks ago, in a fit of rage, he gouged out his own eyes with a steak bone, whetted to razor-like sharpness.

Joyce once had gained respite from death in the electric chair by feigning insanity. He was taken from death row and declared insane after he had shrieked the senseless "Jones, Oh Jones" continually and stripped his clothes from his body in the dead of winter.

Confined to a sanitarium, he apparently became normal again. He was returned to his death cell. Again he feigned madness.

The laws of Texas forbid a second sanity trial, but he maintained his role of a mad man and it was in vain hope of a reprieve that he dug out his eyes.

Three days ago he became calm and accepted his fate. During his last hour of life last night, he joked with prison guards, ate numerous dishes of ice cream and smoked several cigars.

He explained his action in gouging out his eyes by quoting scripture: "If thine eye offendeth thee, pluck it out."

"A fellow in my fix has to try almost everything he can to help himself," he said.

Seated in the electric chair and with the straps adjusted, Shepard said to the dozen guards and newspaper men who witnessed his "Last Mile."

"I want to thank all of you for the way you have treated me. God be with you." As his last act, he kissed a crucifix held to his lips by Father Hugh Finnegan, prison chaplain.

The current was applied. He was pronounced dead within six minutes.

Shepard's body was taken to a city mortuary, where it was unclaimed as he had neither friends nor relatives. He formerly lived in Arizona.

COURT REVERSES WHITE DECISION

SUPREME COURT RULES CONCERN NOT LIABLE, BOY RIDING AT OWN RISK

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—The state supreme court today reversed the decision of the Crow Wing county district court in a damage suit brought by Henry R. White, Brainerd, against the Brainerd Service Motor Co.

A Crow Wing county jury had awarded White $8,000 damages for injury to his son Robert suffered while he was riding in a car driven by an employee of the Service Motor Co.

The supreme court ruled that the concern was not liable since the boy was riding at his own risk.

SCHALL, CHASE DO NOT ADDRESS WOMEN VOTERS

STATE CONVENTION OF LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS HEARS OTHER CANDIDATES

OLSON SAID CHASE HAS INDULGED IN CERTAIN IMAGINATIVE ACCUSATIONS

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—With both republican senatorial and gubernatorial candidates missing, the state convention of the League of Women Voters last night heard from other nominees what they hoped to do if elected.

Both missing candidates were attacked and when word was received early in the evening that Senator Schall could not come, the executive committee refused to allow a substitute to speak. Ray P. Chase, republican gubernatorial candidate, announced 24 hours before the meeting that he would be unable to keep his appointment to address the women delegates.

Floyd E. Olson, farmer-labor candidate for governor, implied in his talk that Chase might not have been able to attend the Faribault convention because he did not want to discuss issues on the same platform.

"I had hopes, since my opponent has indulged in certain imaginative accusations, to have an opportunity on the same platform to get a real comparison of the worth or value of what either of us might have to say," Olson told the delegates and visitors.

Einar Hoidale, democratic senatorial candidate, again attacked Senator Schall's use of his franking privilege. Hoidale said the three major issues in his platform were prohibition enforcement, agricultural equality with industry and support of the administration as a means to obtaining the nine-foot Mississippi channel and the St. Lawrence waterway.

Meanwhile, Senator Schall told of the advantages the nine foot Mississippi channel would bring to the northwest in an address at the seventh ward toothhouse in Minneapolis.

Chase in a talk at Pipestone questioned Olson last night on his attitude toward cleaning up the state capital if elected, conservation and criminal prosecution efficiency in Hennepin county during Olson's term as county attorney there.

FIVE MAY HAVE PERISHED TRAPPED IN A SNOW BANK

Regina, Sask., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Trapped in a snow bank while they apparently were trying in vain to reach this capital city, five men were reported today to have perished.

men Voters' convention with Mrs. A. J. McGuire, Minneapolis, presiding.

The League of Nations and the adherence of the United States to the world court were discussed by delegates to the meeting.

Several statutory changes will be urged before the 1931 Minnesota legislature by the league after action taken today in support of several reform measures.

The league was expected to ask amendment of the marriage law to provide a five-day waiting period between application for and issuance of marriage licenses, promotion of service of women on juries and the support of state appropriations for maternity and infant hygiene.

Representatives of all Minnesota colleges attended a college leave breakfast today at which Miss Keith Clark, Northfield, presided.

The convention also voted its annual budget and transacted routine business.

A luncheon at noon closed the three-day meeting. Marguerite Willis, Minneapolis, retiring state president, was the principal speaker.

Minneapolis led all cities in number of delegates with 28. St. Paul had 19, Farmington 14, Winona 12, Northfield 7, and Duluth 5. Faribault had 21 official delegates.

LEOPOLD, LOEB ARE ASSIGNED TO HARD LABOR

WEALTHY "THRILL SLAYERS" BREAK THE PRISON REGULATIONS

JOLIET, ILLINOIS, PENITENTIARY OFFICIALS TAKE ACTION

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Infractions of prison regulations resulted today in Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, wealthy "thrill slayers" of Bobby Franks, being assigned to hard labor for the first time since they were sentenced to life imprisonment more than seven years ago.

Leopold, formerly secretary to the prison chaplain, was ordered transferred to shop work at the new Stateville penitentiary while Loeb, who had been acting as a messenger at Stateville, was assigned to shops in Joliet.

It was said that Leopold was assigned hard labor because he violated prison regulations concerning delivery of official messages. The latest infraction by Loeb, who previously had been placed in solitary confinement for cooking in his cell, was not revealed.

PRECAUTIONS TO PROTECT DIAMOND

RACKETEER LIES IN POLYCLINIC HOSPITAL, NEW YORK, GAINING STRENGTH

New York, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Elaborate precautions to protect Jack Diamond, racketeer, in his room at Polyclinic hospital were taken today as the gangster gained strength and appeared likely to "beat the spot."

Heavy wire screens were placed on the windows of Diamond's room on the third floor, and additional patrolmen and detectives were stationed at points of vantage.

By their precautions police lent credence to the report that a watchman at Madison Square Garden, across the street from the hospital, had been approached by two men Sunday night who offered him $25 to allow them to take a "photograph" of Diamond's window from a fire escape across the street.

The watchman refused because he didn't like the looks of the "violin case" the men were carrying, it was said.

Another day's search for Diamond's assailants served only to bring out more conflicting details of the events surrounding the shooting Sunday morning, when two men entered his room at the Hotel Monticello and fired four bullets into his body.

EXPLOSION ON 4TH FLOOR OF GARMENT CAPITAL BUILDING

WRECKS BUILDING, SHATTERS WINDOWS WITHIN 8-BLOCK RADIUS

FIREMEN SAID IT WAS MIRACLE IF DEAD WOULD NOT BE FOUND IN WRECKAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A terrific gas explosion shook the 11-story Garment Capital building here today, injuring at least 40 persons and causing property damage estimated at $1,000,000.

For a time it was thought the explosion resulted from labor trouble being an outgrowth of a strike called seven weeks ago by the Garment Workers' Union.

Police discounted the "labor war" theory, however. They insisted that the blast occurred when a Mexican boy struck a match to light a cigarette.

Two witnesses told authorities the youth stopped in front of the Beverly Hills Frocks Company and struck the match.

"The match flamed and then there was a roar," said Phil Handman, who was standing near by on the fifth floor. "I saw the Mexican boy and his boss knocked down."

The "boss," it was learned was H. Schulman, owner of the Beverly Hills Company. Schulman was one of those seriously injured, having received second and third degree burns about the face, hands and legs.

An elevator boy, who had just left the Mexican and Schulman out of his lift, substantiated Handman's recital.

The Mexican boy was badly injured. At Georgia Street receiving hospital where 40 persons were treated, it was said that all would recover.

Schulman, the Mexican boy, Albert Coleman, 45, a salesman, and Luella Bailey, 21, stenographer, were those who received the most serious cuts and bruises.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A terrific gas explosion rocked the Garment Capital building here today and caused injury to approximately 40 persons.

Firemen found two gas mains in the structure opened and said the explosion apparently had been deliberately turned into the building.

Certain garment manufacturers, with offices in the Capital building have had once began an investigation to determine if striking workers might be responsible for the blast.

The discovery that two gas mains apparently had been turned on deliberately was made by Deputy Fire Chief E. J. Scott.

He said he discovered the open mains in the rear of the building. Police reported that members of its red squad, expecting sabotage, had been stationed from twilight to dawn at the building.

Two of these men were patrolling outside the structure when the blast occurred.

Their police car, parked along the curb, was wrecked by the detonation.

The interior of the Garment Capital building was a shambles.

The shock of the blast seemed to concentrate on the fourth and fifth floors and shops there were ruined.

All window panes in the same block were broken and panes were shattered as far as eight blocks from the site.

Fire followed the blast on the fourth and fifth floors of the 11-story structure but six companies of firemen quickly brought it under control.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—A violent explosion on the fourth floor of the Garment Capital building today caused the injury of approximately 40 persons, wrecked the building and shattered windows within an eight-block radius of the structure.

Reports to the police that the detonations did not sound like a gas blast led to an immediate investigation to determine if a bomb might have been planted and exploded in the building.

Certain unions in the garment trade have been striking recently.

While most of those injured in the blast received minor cuts and bruises, ten were taken to the hospital. Firemen, who extinguished the flames that followed the explosion, said it would be a miracle if dead are not found in the wreckage.

The explosion occurred in the Beverly Hills Frocks, Inc., dress and sports apparel manufacturers.

Police said that employees of this company went on a strike a month ago.

Members of the police red squad were at hand at the time of the blast, it was said.

They were stationed there because trouble was expected from striking men, authorities said.

A police automobile in front of the Garment Capital building, was wrecked by the force of the explosion.

The explosion came shortly before 7 o'clock at a time when employees of various garment firms in the building were preparing to start their day's work.

J. Holtzman, a painter, and Carl K. Kaplan, owner of a garment merchandising firm, were on the third floor of

Mrs. Bell refused to tell anything about her husband, where he had lived or what his occupation had been. They had been registered at the hotel for three days.

PARTY DRAGS RIVER FOR DROWNED HUNTER

Riverton Man Near Death Here From Exposure as Search Conducted for Companion's Body

JOHN JACKSON, VICTIM

Mill District Carpenter Drown's Near Green's Point When Duck Boat Overturns

Stern faced men patrolled the Mississippi river at Green's Point, north of Marquis hill, about nine miles north of Brainerd today, their faces bitten by lashing snow, scouring the blent shores of the river and gazing into murky water for the body of John Jackson, 45 year old Mill district carpenter, who drowned when the boat he was hunting ducks from overturned Thursday shortly after 3 p. m.

His companion, Harold Dobson, of Riverton, fiancée of the drowned man's daughter, lies near death on a bed at the home of Jackson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell Stanley, 1620 9th avenue N. E., suffering from exposure and fright from his terrifying experience.

Near collapse Dobson told in disjointed form yesterday afternoon of the overturning of the boat, of Jackson's disappearance, of his own experience in battling the cold water in an attempt to locate his friend and then of dragging himself up on the shore, unable to rise for minutes before plunging through the woods to where their car was located. He tried for a long time to start the car and then finally made his way to Brainerd to announce the sad news.

So weakened and nervous was Dobson that he was unable to give relative accurate information as to the location where the boat overturned. He was ordered to bed by a physician with the instructions that he was not to be disturbed. It is feared that pneumonia may set in.

At Jackson's home in Northeast Brainerd, Mrs. Jackson and her daughter Margaret are consoled in their grief by neighboring women whose husbands have joined in the search for the body. The drowned man's son, Robert, is among the party searching the river today. Two brothers-in-law, L. A. Schwendeman, 1003 N street, N. E. and Cromwell Stanley, lead the search party.

The search for the body today appeared almost futile because of the fact that it is feared that the body may have floated down the river into French Rapids.

A searching party was hurriedly formed when first news of the drowning came to Brainerd. The party travelled by cars to Green's Point but were unable to conduct an extensive search because of darkness. The searchers took into consideration today the possibility that the body may have been washed ashore at the large overflow up the river and there was too the possibility that Jackson may have fought his way to the shore and dropped from utter exhaustion.

From what little information could be gained from Dobson, the Riverton man apparently swam about in the cold water for what seemed to him to be hours, searching here and there for his friend. When his efforts failed, he desperately battled the waves and in an exhausted state reached the shore.

The fatality is the first from drowning in the present duck hunting season in this locality.

Up to 3 p. m. today the body of John Jackson had not been recovered from the Mississippi river. His hunting cap however was found floating near where two oars from the boat were also found. The boat was located submerged.

Dragging operations will continue until darkness prevents continuing any longer tonight. Friends of the victim are determined to search for the body until it is found.

By their precautions police lent credence to the report that a watchman at Madison Square Garden, across the street from the hospital, had been approached by two men Sunday night who offered him $25 to allow them to take a "photograph" of Diamond's window from a fire escape across the street. The watchman refused because he didn't like the looks of the "violin case" the men were carrying, it was said.

Another day's search for Diamond's assailants served only to bring out more conflicting details of the events surrounding the shooting Sunday morning, when two men entered his room at the Hotel Monticello and fired four bullets into his body.

EXPLOSION ON 4TH FLOOR OF GARMENT CAPITAL BUILDING

WRECKS BUILDING, SHATTERS WINDOWS WITHIN 8-BLOCK RADIUS

FIREMEN SAID IT WAS MIRACLE IF DEAD WOULD NOT BE FOUND IN WRECKAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A terrific gas explosion shook the 11-story Garment Capital building here today, injuring at least 40 persons and causing property damage estimated at $1,000,000.

For a time it was thought the explosion resulted from labor trouble being an outgrowth of a strike called seven weeks ago by the Garment Workers' Union.

Police discounted the "labor war" theory, however. They insisted that the blast occurred when a Mexican boy struck a match to light a cigarette.

Two witnesses told authorities the youth stopped in front of the Beverly Hills Frock Company and struck the match.

"The match flamed and then there was a roar," said Phil Handman, who was standing near by on the fifth floor. "I saw the Mexican boy and his boss knocked down."

The "boss," it was learned was H. Schulman, owner of the Beverly Hills Company. Schulman was one of those seriously injured, having received second and third degree burns about the face, hands and legs.

An elevator boy, who had just left the Mexican and Schulman out of his lift, substantiated Handman's recital. The Mexican boy was badly injured. At Georgia Street receiving hospital where 40 persons were treated, it was said that all would recover.

Schulman, the Mexican boy, Albert Coleman, 45, a salesman, and Luella Bailey, 21, stenographer, were those who received the most serious cuts and bruises.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—A terrific gas explosion rocked the Garment Capital building here today and caused injury to approximately 40 persons.

Firemen found two gas mains in the structure opened and said the explosion apparently had been deliberately turned into the building.

Certain garment manufacturers, with offices in the Capital building have had labor troubles recently and police at once began an investigation to determine if striking workers might be responsible for the blast.

The discovery that two gas mains apparently had been turned on deliberately was made by Deputy Fire Chief E. J. Scott.

He said he discovered the open mains in the rear of the building. Police reported that members of its red squad, expecting sabotage, had been stationed from twilight to dawn at the building.

Two of these men were patrolling outside the structure when the blast occurred.

Their police car, parked along the curb, was wrecked by the detonation. The interior of the Garment Capital building was a shambles.

The shock of the blast seemed to concentrate on the fourth and fifth floors and shops there were ruined. All window panes in the same block were broken and panes were shattered as far as eight blocks from the site.

Fire followed the blast on the fourth and fifth floors of the 11-story structure but six companies of firemen quickly brought it under control.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—A violent explosion on the fourth floor of the Garment Capital building today caused the injury of approximately 40 persons, wrecked the building and shattered windows within an eight-block radius of the structure.

Reports to the police that the detonations did not sound like a gas blast led to an immediate investigation to determine if a bomb might have been planted and exploded in the building. Certain unions in the garment trade have been striking recently.

While most of those injured in the blast received minor cuts and bruises, ten were taken to the hospital. Firemen, who extinguished the flames that followed the explosion, said it would be a miracle if dead are not found in the wreckage.

The explosion occurred in the Beverly Hills Flocks, Inc., dress and sports apparel manufacturers.

Police said that employees of this company went on a strike a month ago.

Members of the police red squad were at hand at the time of the blast, it was said.

They were stationed there because trouble was expected from striking men, authorities said.

A police automobile in front of the Garment Capital building, was wrecked by the force of the explosion.

The explosion came shortly before 7 o'clock at a time when employees of various garment firms in the building were preparing to start their day's work.

J. Holtzman, a painter, and Carl K. Kaplan, owner of a garment merchandising firm, were on the third floor of

New York, Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—The Japanese ratification of the London naval treaty, rushed across the continent in a speedy air trip which cost the life of an army flier, was placed aboard the liner Leviathan, today, for the last leg of its journey.

French Deny Request

to Place an American

Observer on French Isles

Paris, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The French government has decided to refuse Washington's request for permission to place an American observer on the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, near the Newfoundland coast, to watch incoming and outgoing liquor shipments, it was disclosed today.

The request was part of the prohibition enforcement war against the $1,000,000 a month liquor traffic between the once-poor islands and the United States.

The embassy here denies having handled the request but suggested the state department may have dealt directly with the French embassy in Washington.

French Deny Request to Place an American Observer on French Isles

Paris, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The French government has decided to refuse Washington's request for permission to place an American observer on the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, near the Newfoundland coast, to watch incoming and outgoing liquor shipments, it was disclosed today.

The request was part of the prohibition enforcement war against the $1,000,000 a month liquor traffic between the once-poor islands and the United States.

The embassy here denies having handled the request but suggested the state department may have dealt directly with the French embassy in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today granted the request of northwestern states and reopened the Great Northern-Northern Pacific consolidation case.

The two roads were authorized to merge provided they divorced themselves from control of the Burlington. Many northwestern states, extending from Illinois to the Pacific coast, objected to the merger, principally on the grounds the commission had failed to take into account the status of employees of the two roads.

PABST PREDICTS BREWERIES WILL OPERATE SOON

PROPHECIES PRODUCING PRE-PROHIBITION BEER FOR RE-TAIL SALE AT 10c PINT

MILWAUKEE BREWER GAMBLES
$800,000 ON NEW EQUIP-

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17.—(U.P.)—Milwaukee's million dollar breweries soon will be producing pre-prohibition beer for retail sale at ten cents a pint, Fred Pabst, Sr., whose name has been known in the brewing industry for years, predicted today in an interview.

"I have gambled $800,000 in new equipment on my belief that the 18th amendment will be modified to permit manufacture of beer," he said. "Every one of Milwaukee's other six breweries is ready to start operation on a moment's notice."

Pabst recently said that the equipment, imported from Germany, could be used for making malt syrup as well as beer. He admitted today, however, the machinery would not have been installed "were it not for the probability of beer coming back."

In manufacturing the non-alcoholic beverage, Pabst said, "regular beer" first is produced and the alcohol later removed.

If beer of stronger alcoholic content is legalized, he pointed out, the breweries can keep on making near-beer and simply neglect to remove the excess alcohol.

"Under present regulations," Pabst said, "the alcoholic content of beer is limited to one-half of one per cent. Myself and other brewers are convinced that the Wickersham committee on law enforcement will make a recommendation to congress during December that three and four per cent beer be allowed."

"I feel that the public wants beer back, and that congress will listen, if not next December, then in December, 1931. I am willing to stake all my money on my expectations so that my company may be ready."

Other evidence of Pabst's faith in the return of beer is seen in improvements which his corporation is making to its malt house and boiler rooms.

The seven-story malt house, containing germinating bins, belting and cleaning machinery, has been remodeled at a cost of $125,000. The Pabst Corporation has stocked its warehouse with between $300,000 and $400,000 more grain than ordinarily would be carried.

Pabst said the return of beer would provide employment for thousands of men and increase the prices of grain crops.

RISING 984 feet in the air, towering above all Paris, commanding a view 85 miles in radius, the Eiffel Tower is one of the most famous structures in the world.

The Tower was completed in 1889 at a cost of $1,000,000. Three sets of elevators, carry passengers, and the admission receipts for the first year paid for the Tower.

In later years the Tower has played an important part in scientific research. On the top are radio antennae from which time signals are sent out, search lights for sea and air craft, and an observatory with physical and biological laboratories.

THE EIFFEL TOWER was not built in a day. It required the genius of a great engineer, careful study of fundamental principles, and patient labor over a period of many months. In the same way, the Nash process of roasting coffee was perfected only after years of research and experiment—years of studying the fundamental principles of coffee flavor.

There are many brands, of course, many blends of coffee, each claiming a special distinction. But basically these coffees are all alike—all are developed by a common process of roasting.

Nash's Toasted Coffee, on the other hand, is developed by an entirely new and modern method—toasting.

Now—Coffee With 35% More Flavor

The fierce, direct heat of roasting, as all coffee experts have long known, "roasts out" a large percentage of the flavor-producing oils. The delicate aromatic oils placed by nature in each berry of coffee simply are not able to withstand the tremendous heat of roasting.

Toasting, however, by actually sealing the surface of the coffee berry, uniformly browns the berry while sealing in the maximum of flavor-producing oils. Food chemists, analyzing coffee roasted by the new process and the same coffee roasted by ordinary methods, find that toasted coffee possesses 35.7% more flavor than roasted coffee.

SAYS EVEN SPINSTERS CAN'T RESIST ROMANCE

Encouragement is offered the bachelor girl and spinster by Winifred Van Duzer, author of many successful novels, who asserts that old maids are only the products of lack of romantic opportunity or environment.

"The natural instinct to love and be loved is so strong that it will overcome even the distrust so many women show toward men," Miss Van Duzer says.

"I don't think it would be possible for any woman to avoid falling in love, for instance, if she were to be thrown into the constant companionship of a personable man during an ocean voyage to which was added the glamor of many moonlight nights."

"Her resistance might be strong enough to fend off romantic advances in the old home town, where everything has the intense reality of the familiar scene, but not in new and romantic settings."

Miss Van Duzer demonstrates this psychology in her new story, "Judy," which portrays the situations in which a young school teacher, who regards herself as disillusioned about men, finds herself when thrown into a series of adventures and romantic opportunities.

Judy Archer had vowed she never would marry, but she learned that she was not as obdurate as she had thought when a mysterious and personable young man pays her ardent court.

As a consequence of her acquaintanceship with him, she encounters adventures that upset all her notions of what life held in store for her.

"Judy" will be published serially in the Brainerd Dispatch beginning Monday, October 20. Every chapter develops the interesting theme "Can a man-hater resist romance when it comes her way?"

Dad's Day at the University

SATURDAY, October 18, is Dad's Day at the University of Minnesota. This day gives Father an opportunity to see the University going about its regular work during the morning hours, to attend a football game in the afternoon, and to attend the dinner and meeting of the Dad's Association in the evening.

Invitations to the fathers of Minnesota students have been sent out by President L. D. Coffman. "If you can be here Saturday morning, we particularly urge that you try to attend classes with your son or daughter," writes President Coffman. "All members of the teaching staff will welcome the opportunity to become better acquainted with the home backgrounds and family plans of the students in whom they are most directly interested."

And there is much to see. There is the Northrop Memorial Auditorium, the University Hospital, the Library, Folwell Hall, Shevlin Hall, the Minnesota Union, Administration Building, the Engineering Group, the Chemistry Building, the Medical-Biological Group, the Mines Building, and many other buildings, the Athletic Plant, the University Farm.

Nothing gives more pleasure to the faculty and administration of the University of Minnesota than to welcome to the campus the thousand or more fathers of Minnesota students who come on each Dad's Day to visit.

There is no group in which a keener interest in the University may rightfully be assumed than among the parents of the twelve thousand undergraduates who are yearly registering at the University. Theirs is the plural interest of residents of Minnesota, benefited by all that the University performs for the state at large, of taxpayers, some small part of whose contributions goes to support this institution, and of parents, who have entrusted to it sons and daughters during the formative years of the educational period.

Quite a number of Brainerd Dads will be in attendance at the university ceremonies.

Traveling Billboards

THE Rochester Post-Bulletin calls attention to a new form of publicity, the traveling billboard, and it is in evidence in Brainerd.

The Rochester paper states that "now we have the traveling billboard to offend the eye, a money-making scheme employed by no less a concern than the railway express company, and one that should be sat on instantly. It's bad enough to have to view billboards on every side erected on private property, but to have them running up and down the main streets on the side of express wagons is rubbing it in. These wagons are permitted to operate tax free. They stop where they want to, they double-park, obstruct traffic and are a tolerated nuisance at best. To transform them into traveling billboards is an outrage on the public. Is it going to stand for it? We think not for any considerable length of time."

Examination of the local express conveyance yesterday disclosed a chewing gum advertisement framed on one side of the vehicle and a framed advertisement of cigarettes on the other.

Republican Party Aids Agriculture

IN a talk given Wednesday night at Carrington, N. D., Representative Gilbert M. Haugen, of Iowa, said that nearly every law beneficial to agriculture which has been passed by Congress has been promoted by the Republican party.

"In the last eleven years, during which the Republican party has had control of the legislative branch of the government, Congress has passed more laws beneficial to agriculture than were passed in all the previous history of our country," said Mr. Haugen.

"Every farm law enacted in the last eleven years," he said, "including the agricultural marketing act, to establish equality between agricultural commodities and the products of industry, have either been sponsored or approved by the legislative representatives of the numerous farm groups."

Mr. Haugen defended the Republican program for agriculture and said that the Smoot-Hawley tariff gave the farmer equality with industry.

Minnesota Paving

THE Minnesota Highway Department this year has built 280 miles of pavement, all 20 feet wide except two short stretches which are wider. Weather conditions this summer have been unusually favorable, and all the paving has been finished on time, in most cases ahead of schedule, according to Commissioner C. M. Babcock.

With hard-surfaced roads previously built, this gives Minnesota 1,430 miles of pavement. Of this paving, 1,200 miles are in one connected system, with the Iowa line near Albert Lea, Lake Crystal, Austin and Pine Island as the southern termini, Stillwater and Lakeland the termini on the Wisconsin border, Brownston, Benson, Alexandria and Brainerd at the western ends, and Grand Rapids, Aurora and Two Harbors the termini to the north. The population of the cities, villages and farmers connected by this central 1,200 mile paving system is estimated at nearly 1,500,000, or more than half of the population of the state.

Ray Chase for Governor

RAY CHASE is daily gaining in strength in his candidacy for governor. He has been addressing voters in 14 or more towns daily until the itinerary was interrupted by a death in his family.

Chase is not telling the voters that he is the one and only friend of the people who must be elected to save the state from ruin. He is content to let the people know just what he stands for and just what he will fight for.

If the voters want a calm, earnest, sincere man for governor, one who is and will be a wise student of affairs, able to conduct the business of the state in an efficient and experienced manner, Ray Chase is the man. Friends who know him best say that Chase is short on promises, but he is always long on performance. He pledges only what he intends honestly to do; he uses his energy in constructive effort, not in vain and pretentious promissings.

Dear Sir:
For 27 years I have lived and practiced law in the 15th Judicial District. I value the reputation I have endeavored to build up over that period of time too highly to let pass unnoticed or unanswered the imputations and inferences in W. S. McClenahan's letter to you of the 14th.

No lawyer had greater respect or love for him while he was one of our presiding judges than I, and what I said of him upon his retirement and upon opening my first term of court I said as sincerely as anything I ever said in my life. My respect and admiration for him has not been lessened by the fact that he has been led, in his enfeebled condition, to attach his signature to such a communication.

The fact that he was the first person to congratulate me and express his hearty satisfaction with my appointment as his successor, and that Mrs. McClenahan was the second person, is at least suggestive that his communication was inspired by others.

The inference which is sought to be made from his letter is that I induced him to retire. The facts, of which he is apparently forgetful, are these. Early in January the Itasca County papers began booming Mr. Thwing as his successor. Brainerd papers and businessmen, realizing that Judge McClenahan's condition would not permit him to go through another campaign, began discussing his possible retirement. I, as President of the Crow Wing County Bar Association, had been previously importuned by many members to call a meeting of the Association for the purpose of adopting a resolution asking the immediate retirement of Judge McClenahan. This I consistently refused to do. Finally a petition signed by five members of the bar was presented to me demanding the calling of such meeting. Under the by-laws of the Association I was compelled to do and did instruct the Acting Secretary to do so. The same day Judge McClenahan's brother-in-law called upon me and asked me to postpone the meeting for one week. This I gladly did. He came in before the week expired and asked me to postpone the meeting again. This I again did. On January 20th in response to a telephone call from Judge McClenahan I went to his home; we discussed the question thoroughly and I informed him of the attitude of the public and the lawyers as fully as I knew. Neither on this nor any other occasion did I urge Judge McClenahan to retire, nor did he ever advise me that he would retire.

It is distasteful to me to be compelled to write this letter. I and my many supporters throughout the campaign have indulged in no trickery or subterfuge and I am surprised and disappointed that the opposition should see fit to do so and at so late a day. I shall write no further letters to newspapers and sincerely trust that Judge McClenahan and his advisers out of respect for the office which he so honorably held for many years will do likewise.

Respectfully yours,
M. E. RYAN.

MINNESOTA EXPECTED TO DEFEAT HOOSIERS SATURDAY

COACH PAT PAGE HAS INDIANA ALL SET FOR BATTLE

SUPPOSEDLY WEAK INDIANA
TEAMS HAVE GIVEN GOPHERS
PREVIOUS UPSETS

4 INTRA-CONFERENCE, 2 INTER-SECTIONAL GAMES SCHED-ULED TOMORROW

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Minnesota is expected to make a successful conference debut, but supposedly weak Indiana teams have given highly rated Gopher aggregations unexpected upsets in the past, and Coach Pat Page has his Hoosiers primed for a determined effort. Minnesota displayed great defensive strength against Stanford and although weak offensively in previous games, should wear down Indiana's resistance.

With four intra-conference and two inter-sectional games on the schedule, Saturday's competition in the Big Ten promises to clarify the race for 1930 conference championship honors.

All of the recognized contenders except Wisconsin are scheduled to meet conference rivals and several of them face the danger of elimination. Wisconsin and Chicago, the only teams playing outside of the league, meet strong inter-sectional opponents. The schedule for the day is:

Northwestern vs. Illinois at Champaign.

Michigan vs. Ohio State at Columbus.

Indiana vs. Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Purdue vs. Iowa at Iowa City.

Pennsylvania vs. Wisconsin at Madison.

Florida vs. Chicago at Chicago.

Northwestern, pre-season championship favorite, will enter its game with Illinois as the under dog. The Wildcats have experienced an unprecedented string of misfortune and will be badly handicapped. Loss of Captain Bruder, Fullback Russell and Harry Kent, varsity guard, has forced Coach Hanley to revamp his team and the smallpox vaccinations made necessary by Bruder's illness had prevented Northwestern from holding a single scrimmage this week.

Illinois' reputedly green team has developed rapidly and the presence of Berry, sensational sophomore half-back, gives the team a dangerous scoring threat.

Michigan's titular hopes, induced by a victory over Purdue, will be given a severe test in the Ohio State game. Ohio State still entertains ambitions of winning honors despite last week's defeat by Northwestern and it now appears that it may take more than one defeat to eliminate a team from the race.

Purdue, defending champion, is in the already defeated class, but like Ohio State the Boilermakers still retain hope of leading the pack at the close of the season and they expect to get into the winning column by defeating Iowa. Fumbles defeated Purdue last week and Coach Kizer is confident the fault has been eliminated. Iowa, twice defeated by inter-sectional rivals, professes to harbor expectations of an "upset" victory, but the Hawkeyes are merely whistling in the dark.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—Inclement weather today threatened to provide additional worries for the rival coaches in tomorrow's game between Minnesota and Indiana. Rain and sleet have transformed Northrup Field into a quagmire and probably will prevent the use of passing attacks. Indiana's squad, 31 strong, arrived today.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Even "Gloomy Gil" Thistlethwaite, Wisconsin coach, could find little reason for pessimism today as the Badgers tapered off for tomorrow's inter-sectional clash with Pennsylvania. Every member of Thistlethwaite's varsity teams was in good condition and yesterday's final practice indicated that the squad is ready for the test.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Lack of wind today caused a sixth postponement of the second race of the international fishermen's series between the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud and the Canadian champion, Blue-nose.

Announcement of the latest postponement was made by the sailing committee after a one hour delay in the starting time had been ordered in the hope that the wind would freshen.

It was understood that another attempt to sail the second race would be made tomorrow.

With the football game this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the municipal field in mind, 200 students of the Brainerd high school staged a rally for the home team at noon today.

The rooters gathered at the corners of Seventh and Laurel and Sixth and Laurel streets for the pepfest.

Coach Dammann's men are clashing this afternoon on a wet field against Aitkin.

Minnesota Crosscountry
Team to Race Iowa

Facing their first major foe of the season, the Minnesota cross country team will race Iowa over a three and one-half mile course at Minneapolis on Saturday.

The Gophers nosed out North Dakota Aggies last week by a 26-30 margin but the Hawkeyes are considerably stronger. Jack Currell, Ted Rasmussen, Al Adams and Mike Sells are the mainstays of the Minnesota team. Paul Semple, recovering from illness may run and Dwight Duncan, recently eligible, may also run, but neither is in first class condition as yet.

Iowa will have as its scoring threats, Tom Kelly, last year's captain, A. W. Wickey, Stan Skowbo, G. S. Buis and A. R. Stanley. The race will be run on the River Road course.

Various Sabbaths

Besides the Christian Sunday, there is the Jewish Saturday, the Mohammedan Friday, Egyptian Thursday, Assyrian Wednesday, Persian Tuesday and Greek Monday. It is said that every day of the week is observed as a sabbath by some religion.

TEN ROUNDS ARE FOUGHT IN MILL CITY AUDITORIUM

LOUGHRAN WAS COMPLETE MAS-

ALL TIMES

WON EVERY ROUND EXCEPT THIRD WHICH WAS EVEN

Loughran was complete master of the situation at all times and won every round except the third which was even. Loughran's persistent left hand found its way into Daniel's face time after time to completely baffled the Minneapolis boy.

The former light heavyweight champion was able to hit Daniels half a dozen blows while Daniels was striving futilely to make a single return.

On rare occasions, Daniels broke down Loughran's guard and landed several jarring punches but neither fighter was ever in danger of a knockout.

Loughran, who has taken the road

for a comeback tour, proved to be in good shape and to have regained most of his old time lightning speed.

Loughran weighed in at 183½ and Daniels at 184½.

Charles Retzlaff, Duluth, 197 scored a technical knockout over Angus McDonald, Minneapolis, 223, in the second round of a scheduled six rounder. Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, 124 out-pointed Eddy Smith, Chicago, 125½, in six rounds. Britt Gorman, Minneapolis, 125 3-4 decided Bobby O'Dowd, Cedar Rapids, Ia., 117½, in six rounds. Art Lasky, Minneapolis, 180 knocked out John Baker, St. Paul, 170 in the first round of a scheduled four round fight.

APPLEBY TO BE ASKED TO DEFEND CHAMPIONSHIP

Chicago, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Edgar T. Appleby of New York, who regained his national amateur 182½ pound title by defeating Percy Collins of Chicago last week, will be asked to defend his championship within 30 days. G. R. Collins, president of the National Billiard association announced today.

Ray V. Fessenden of Madison, Wis., is the challenger and the match probably will be played at Madison. The winner of the Appleby-Fessenden match will be subject to challenge by Conrad C. Wallgren of Seattle, Wash.

TECH RUMPUS

8 OR 10 OTHER GAMES ON NOR-

OUT ATTRACTIONS

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 17.—(UP)—There may have been October Saturdays offering more real football than is on the boards for tomorrow, but you will have to hire an archeologist to bring them to light.

Each section of the country has its own particular headliners, bringing together leaders in their part of the woods. Add to this array of sectional battles some six or eight highly interesting inter-sectional contests, and you have the backdrop for the star act of the day's program—the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech rumpus at South Bend.

While the Irish and the Tartans are fighting it out on Cartier field there will be eight or ten other games that on normal days would be standout attractions.

In the east, Harvard and Army,

Syracuse and Pittsburgh, New York university and Missouri, and Dartmouth and Columbia should provide plenty of entertainment.

The Army-Harvard game may produce an eastern champion. Harvard, with practically the same team that burned so brightly near the close of the 1929 season, will get its first test of the year against an Army outfit that boasts a veteran line, and fast backs.

In the south, Tennessee, unbeaten for three years, tackles a well-balanced Alabama eleven in the latter's own playground. The Vols, with the mighty McEver definitely out of the game, are likely to start play as the underdogs. Another Dixie scorch is the Georgia-North Carolina game at Athens. The Georgians, taxed to the limit by Yale, may cost their backers lots of money.

The mid-west fairly teems with big games. Outside of the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech, Northwestern plays Illinois. Pennsylvania engages Wisconsin. Fbi. a plays Chicago. Michigan State meets a powerful Colgate outfit, and Ohio State takes on Michigan.

Stanford vs. Oregon State, Oregon vs. Washington, and California vs. Olympic club are the far west's leading attractions.

In the south west, Baylor and Southern Methodist will furnish the most fireworks.

Whale Deep Diver

The maximum dive of the whale is supposed to be about 600 feet.

ROLL PRACTICE GAMES IN LADIES PIN LEAGUE

Practice games were rolled in the ladies league at Van's alleys last evening in preparation for the start of the league battles next week in earnest. The teams were captained by Miss Elaine Hartley, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. E. DeRocher and Miss Gertrude McGarry.

Tonight the Moose will meet the Brainos and the Monument Works will play the All Stars.

MINNESOTA EXPECTED TO DEFEAT HOOSIERS SATURDAY

COACH PAT PAGE HAS INDIANA ALL SET FOR BATTLE

SUPPOSEDLY WEAK INDIANA
TEAMS HAVE GIVEN GOPH-
ERS PREVIOUS UPSETS

4 INTRA-CONFERENCE, 2 INTER- SECTIONAL GAMES SCHED- ULED TOMORROW

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Minnesota is expected to make a successful conference debut, but supposedly weak Indiana teams have given Gopher aggregations unexpected upsets in the past, and Coach Pat Page has his Hoosiers primed for a determined effort. Minnesota displayed great defensive strength against Stanford and although weak offensively in previous games, should wear down Indiana's resistance.

With four intra-conference and two intersectional games on the schedule, Saturday's competition in the Big Ten promises to clarify the race for 1930 conference championship honors.

All of the recognized contenders except Wisconsin are scheduled to meet conference rivals and several of them face the danger of elimination. Wisconsin and Chicago, the only teams playing outside of the league, meet strong intersectional opponents. The schedule for the day is:

Northwestern vs. Illinois at Champaign.

Michigan vs. Ohio State at Columbus.

Indiana vs. Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Purdue vs. Iowa at Iowa City.

Pennsylvania vs. Wisconsin at Madison.

Florida vs. Chicago at Chicago.

Northwestern, pre-season championship favorite, will enter its game with

Illinois as the under dog. The Wildcats have experienced an unprece-dent string of misfortune and will be badly handicapped. Losses of Captain Bruder, Fullback Russell and Harry Kent, varsity guard, has forced Coach Hanley to revamp his team and the smallpox vaccinations made necessary by Bruder's illness had prevented

Northwestern from holding a single scrimmage this week.

Illinois' reputedly green team has developed rapidly and the presence of Berry, sensational sophomore halfback, gives the team a dangerous scoring threat.

Michigan's titular hopes, induced by a victory over Purdue, will be given a severe test in the Ohio State game.

Ohio State still entertains ambitions of winning honors despite last week's defeat by Northwestern and it now appears that it may take more than one defeat to eliminate a team from the race.

Purdue, defending champion, is in the already defeated class, but like

Ohio State the Boilermakers still retain hope of leading the pack at the close of the season and they expect to get into the winning column by defeating Iowa. Fumbles defeated

Purdue last week and Coach Kizer is confident the fault has been eliminated. Iowa, twice defeated by intersectional rivals, professes to harbor expectations of an "upset" victory, but the Hawkeyes are merely whistling in the dark.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—Inclement weather today threatened to provide additional worries for the rival coaches in tomorrow's game between

Minnesota and Indiana. Rain and sleet have transformed Northrup field into a quagmire and probably will prevent the use of passing attacks. Indiana's squad, 31 strong, arrived today.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Even

"Gloomy Gil" Thistlethwaite, Wisconsinn coach, could find little reason for pessimism today as the Badgers tapered off for tomorrow's intersectional clash with Pennsylvania. Every member of Thistlethwaite's varsity teams was in good condition and yesterday's final practice indicated that the squad is ready for the test.

LACK OF WIND POSTPONES RACE OF TWO SCHOONERS

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Lack of wind today caused a sixth postponement of the second race of the International fishermen's series between the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud and the Canadian champion, Blue-nose.

Announcement of the latest postponement was made by the sailing committee after a one hour delay in the starting time had been ordered in the hope that the wind would freshen.

It was understood that another attempt to sail the second race would be made tomorrow.

GIVE CHEERS FOR B. H. S. TO COME THROUGH TO VIC- TORY OVER AITKIN

With the football game this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the municipal field in mind, 200 students of the Brainerd high school staged a rally for the home team at noon today.

The rooters gathered at the corners of Seventh and Laurel and Sixth and Laurel streets for the pepfest.

Coach Dammann's men are clashing this afternoon on a wet field against Aitkin.

Minnesota Crosscountry Team to Race Iowa

Facing their first major foe of the season, the Minnesota cross country team will race Iowa over a three and one-half mile course at Minneapolis on Saturday.

The Gophers nosed out North Dakota Aggies last week by a 26-30 margin but the Hawkeyes are considerably stronger. Jack Currell, Ted Rasmussen, Al Adams and Mike Sailer are the mainstays of the Minnesota team. Paul Semple, recovering from illness may run and Dwight Duncan, recently eligible, may also run, but neither is in first class condition as yet.

Iowa will have as its scoring threats, Tom Kelly, last year's captain, A. W. Wickey, Stan Skowbo, G. S. Buis and A. R. Stanley. The race will be run on the River Road course.

Various Sabbaths

TEN ROUNDS ARE FOUGHT IN MILL CITY AUDITORIUM

LOUGHRAN WAS COMPLETE MAS- TER OF SITUATION AT ALL TIMES

WON EVERY ROUND EXCEPT
THIRD WHICH WAS EVEN

Loughran was complete master of the situation at all times and won every round except the third which was even. Loughran's persistent left hand found its way into Daniel's face time after time to completely baffle the Minneapolis boy.

The former light heavy champion was able to hit Daniels half a dozen blows while Daniels was striving futilely to make a single return.

On rare occasions, Daniels broke down Loughran's guard and landed several jarring punches but neither fighter was ever in danger of a knock-out.

Loughran, who has taken the road

for a comeback tour, proved to be in good shape and to have regained most of his old time lightning speed.

Loughran weighed in at 183½ and Daniels at 184½.

Charles Retzlaff, Duluth, 197 scored a technical knockout over Angus McDonald, Minneapolis, 223, in the second round of a scheduled six rounder. Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, 124 out-pointed Eddy Smith, Chicago, 125½ in six rounds. Britt Gorman, Minneapolis, 115 3-4 decisioned Bobby O'Dowd, Cedar Rapids, Ia., 117½ in six rounds. Art Lasky, Minneapolis, 180 knocked out John Baker, St. Paul, 170 in the first round of a scheduled four round fight.

APPLEBY TO BE ASKED TO DEFEND CHAMPIONSHIP

Chicago, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Edgar T. Appleby of New York, who regained his national amateur 182 bakline title by defeating Percy Collins of Chicago last week, will be asked to defend his championship within 30 days. G. R. Collins, president of the National Billiard association announced today.

Ray V. Fessenden of Madison, Wis., is the challenger and the match probably will be played at Madison. The winner of the Appleby-Fessenden match will be subject to challenge by Conrad C. Wallgren of Seattle, Wash.

THE LIFE STORY OF MAURICE CHEVALIER

Famous Talkie Star Sang First Love Song; His Early Life Events Recalled

Editor's note: This is the first of two stories on the life story of Maurice Chevalier, famous talkie star. Love-making in song, with appropriate gestures, with which the smiling, mischievous Maurice Chevalier is setting aflutter feminine hearts throughout the world, did not have to be studied by the famous talkie star.

Chevalier sang his first love song to a girl when he was 13.

His gestures, his smile, the flash of his eyes, and the deep feeling which he now puts into his "songs of the heart," were there.

Opposite him, on a box in a paint shop where Chevalier had been en-played as a salesman, sat his "leading lady," Georgette, a blond miss of 10.

One can not sell paint and sing, especially to one's lady love. One must either sing or sell paint, the boss decided. He fired Chevalier, possibly because he thought he was a better singer than a paint salesman.

The romantic, imaginative Maurice, however, was taking the childish affair very seriously, indeed.

Linking his arm in that of his little sweetheart, he took her walking.

Soon they passed a church from which a wedding party was emerging. Mimicing a comic song he stretched out his arms and his voice halted the procession.

Someone hurriedly closed the church door. It slammed on young Chevalier's fingers, crushing them.

In the hospital Maurice decided to renounce his love for Georgette.

Chevalier was born in Montmartre, near Paris. When he was 11 his father died and his mother was forced to support Maurice and other younger children.

With his dreams all of the stage, young Chevalier could not fix his mind for long on any particular job.

He became an apprentice carpenter but still saw, among the falling chips, the rainbow visions of the cafe-concert and circus.

Electrician, then printer for a spell, he lost jobs with perfect abandon, tho his heart and voice sang.

Finally he obtained work in a doll factory. He was to paint porcelain faces. A fine, smooth life-like tint was the rule.

But not with the happy-go-lucky Maurice. Softly humming a love tune, with the ever-ready mischief in his eyes, his lips twisted in a somewhat sardonic smile, he daubed on deep vermilion, transforming the dolls into fantastic theatre puppets.

Of course he was fired again.

Loss of one job after another, probably a record for a boy of 13, only served to increase young Maurice Chevalier's desire for a stage career.

But the family needed money. So Maurice obtained work in a nail factory. So well did he do that his mother believed he had at last found his niche in life—manufacturing nails.

In spare moments, however, Chevalier would steal into the yard and rehearse songs of some favorite actor.

After working hours he would accompany his brother Paul to a nearby gymnasium where they would practice on the trapeze, the flying rings and the parallel bars.

Finally, Maurice fell from the rings, broke an ankle and crushed his face. They took him home and his mother demanded that he discontinue acrobatics. He did so, and directed that energy to gestures while singing.

Without informing his mother, Chevalier went to the Trois Lions (Concert of the Three Lions) and asked to be featured in a song act.

Drawing on his imagination he boldly told the manager of some highly successful engagements.

Just as he was about to be turned down, the manager's wife, attracted by the youth's winning personality, stepped to the fore and urged that he be tried.

With no training—only a great deal of self-imposed practice—the youth stood before a highly amused audience and did his amateurish best. From all accounts it was terrible.

The audience kidded, stomped and shouted. In that place they had no amateur night "hook." Chevalier points out, or he assuredly would have been yanked off the platform.

His everlasting, mischievous grin did not fail him, tho. He took the bumps, accepted his discharge by the highly excited manager, with a shrug of his shoulders and left the place with his head high.

Undaunted over his first failure as a stage star, Maurice Chevalier, not quite 13, went after another try-out.

His famous smile was there when he approached the manager of the Casino Des Tournelles.

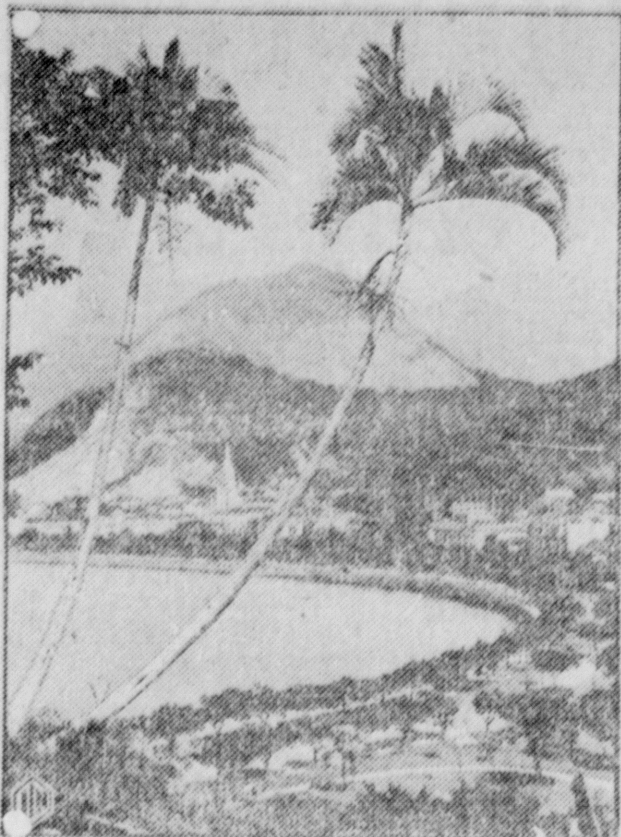

Had he sung anywhere before? "Certainly!" With a flash of his teeth. "The Concert of the Three Lions."

With success? "I brought down the house." Another rare smile and an eloquent shrug of the boyish shoulders. He did not explain just how he brought down the house.

"All right. You are hired. Four evenings a week at 3 francs an evening."

Chevalier joyfully dashed home

EAST BOUND N. Y. C. ENGINE AND BAGGAGE CAR TELESCOPE INTO FAST MAIL

ACCIDENT HAPPENS ON CURVE NEAR CLEVELAND, OHIO

Cleveland, O., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Three men were killed and four injured, one seriously, today when an east bound New York Central engine with one baggage car telescoped into a west bound fast mail of the same line.

The dead are Henry Sprouse, 48, of Cleveland, fireman; Charles Graf, 65, Cleveland, engineer; and Harry F. Dixon, 45, Cleveland, conductor.

The injured, one critically, are Frank McCarthy, 42, engineer, severely scalded; Thomas Henshan, 59, sprained neck; Clarence Sheffield, 35, internal injuries; and William Harnett, 34, all of Cleveland and members of the mail train crew. Harnett was released after being treated at a hospital.

The bodies of the three dead men were pinned in the cabin of the train. Rescuers were unable immediately to remove bodies because of the tangled wreckage.

The wreck occurred at a curve. McCarthy said he saw the other train approach but believed it on another track. No official explanation of the wreck was made.

Maurice did very well, imitating popular song hits and stars. But his new position did not last long. He again was "at liberty."

Rebels Claim Capture of Brazil Port

Dispatches coming through Uruguay sources indicated the Brazilian rebels had routed the Federals from their last stronghold in Southern Brazil by capturing the important seaport of Florianopolis, shown in the above map. He broke into tears when his brother opposed the idea of his singing in public. But his mother comforted him. "There, there—you shall be an actor," she said.

Small engagements in the provinces followed. On his return to Paris a friend took him to meet the celebrated Mistinguett, a foremost musical comedy star of Paris.

Scanning his sparkling face, she predicted:

"You need have no worry about your future, with a face like yours."

With this praise ringing in his ears, young Chevalier went out and signed up a string of engagements. His reputation began to grow.

Back in Paris he was given a dance opposite Mistinguett in the Folies Bergere. The success of this number was instant and tremendous.

The two decided to become partners and it was not until 1913 when Chevalier went away for military training that they separated.

Then came the day when songs were forgotten and Chevalier was sent to the front.

Tomorrow: Chevalier's life story completed.

Reichstag Storm Center As Fascisti Wreck City

The opening of the fifth Reichstag of the German Republic marked scenes of disorder and rioting in the streets of Berlin. The mention of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning (above) at the first session was the signal for a chorus of cries of "hunger dictator" by the Communists.

ACCIDENT HAPPENS ON CURVE NEAR CLEVELAND, OHIO

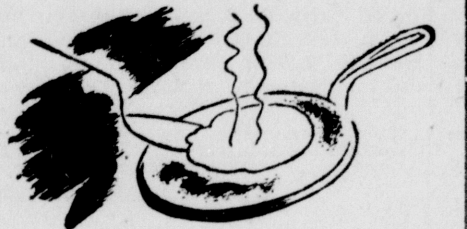

Cleveland, O., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Three men were killed and four injured, one seriously, today when an east bound New York Central engine with one baggage car telescoped into a west bound fast mail of the same line.

The dead are Henry Sprouse, 48, of Cleveland, fireman; Charles Graf, 65, Cleveland, engineer; and Harry F. Dixon, 45, Cleveland, conductor.

The injured, one critically, are Frank McCarthy, 42, engineer, severely scalded; Thomas Henahan, 59, sprained neck; Clarence Sheffield, 35, internal injuries; and William Harnett, 34, all of Cleveland and members of the mail train crew. Harnett was released after being treated at a hospital.

SEVEN COWS, CHASED BY TWO BEARS, DROWN

Purebred Cattle, Frightened by Bruins, Jump Over Cliff Into Mississippi River

FARMERS ARM IN TREK
Will Hunt Down Animals to Prevent Further Loss to Stock by Hungry Bears

Chased by two huge bears, believed hungry enough to kill, seven purebred cows became frightened and jumped headlong over a 30 foot cliff on the bank of the Mississippi river and were drowned, according to word received here today.

The cattle was the property of Geo. Adcock, Perry Lake township farmer. While the incident was not witnessed tracks on the ground revealed that the bears had chased the cattle a considerable distance and had even followed to the edge of the precipice.

Farmers of the locality have armed themselves and are determined to kill the animals before they do further damage to their stock.

TRUNK HIGHWAYS GENERALLY GOOD

Trunk highways throughout the state are as good as they have been any time this year, according to the weekly road condition report issued by the State Highway department today. On most of the gravel roads the recent rains have helped to pack and bind the surface material and have facilitated the work of the maintenance crews. There are exceptions on some routes of recent construction, or where work is in progress. Some of these are reported only fair or poor.

Each week some of the detours made necessary by summer construction are removed.

FAMOUS BULL BROUGHT TO THE MIDDLE WEST

DeCremCo Calamity Posch 511887, recognized as one of the greatest bulls in Holstein history, was purchased by E. H. Maytag September 20 from the Detroit Creamery Farms of Mt. Clemens, Michigan, where he has been the featured sire of their great herd of 1000 registered Holsteins and has been brought to the Maytag farms in Iowa.

Although the price involved in the deal has not been made public, it is understood that the deal represented the largest expenditure that has been made for any bull in recent years. A son of this animal was sold for $10,000 last year at public auction.

This bull became nationally famous in 1927 when he was undefeated champion over a strong show circuit and was named the All-American junior yearling. Although he has not been in the show ring since that year he has developed into a 2600-pound bull of excellent type and is considered the leading contender for the honor for All American aged bull should he again be put on exhibition.

VALE, "J. P."
(Contributed)

Today we have paid our final respects to John Peter Anderson; have, with tear dimmed eyes and bowed heads, returned to the enfolding arms of Mother Earth his mortal body.

And, so we say—Vale, old friend—Bon voyage!

Large in stature, large in mind and heart, he will be missed; his passing leaves a void that will not soon be filled. With his many-sided abilities, his unceasing energy, he occupied a large place in our community's affairs; life to him held forth ever increasing interests; study of humanity held his unflinching attention to the end.

Endowed by Nature with large capabilities and understanding he freely indulged his love for his fellow-men, and spent generously of his time and means for their material, moral and intellectual welfare.

That he did not spend in vain is evidenced by the large and lasting affection with which his memory is held by the people among whom he lived and for whom he so well and long labored.

It was no favor of Fortune that has given to his memory this heritage of affection; neither was it an accident of Fate that carved his worthy title—"A Real Man"—deeply into the very cornerstone of our community's foundation. Rather it was his inherent ability, his comprehending humanness. "A stranger in a stranger land" he arrived in Brainerd a mere youth to whom even the spoken tongue was alien. Starting from scratch, without favor or advantage save that contained in his sturdy body, stout heart and indomitable courage, he worked his way from a most humble beginning to the highest place in his chosen field of endeavor.

From an apprentice boy at 13 years of age to shop superintendent at 34 tells more potently than can words the nature of his talents.

In his upward climb he allowed ambition to harm no man—took no mean advantage of any person; for he was clean in principle and four-square in all his dealings. Appointed a shop superintendent he proved himself to be a wise and able administrator. Compassion was his guide for beneath his sturdy chest there beat a heart as tender as a child's; a heart that carried no grudge or malice; a heart that supplied the motive force behind his hands so often extended in help to his fellow-men, many of whom carried burdens far less heavy than his own.

A Rotarian, he truly exemplified in his daily life of service the principles of his affiliation.

His home and family held his chief interest. After the tasks of the day were laid aside, home was a haven to which he retired; where, surrounded by his loved ones and friends, he would enjoy the few quiet hours that were his.

To his family the heart of the community goes out in deepest sympathy. His life in all respects suffices for a monument—his achievements a worthy cap therefor; one to which the youth of our time and place may with all confidence—as to a clear and un-fading beacon light—set their most ambitious course!

SEVEN COWS, CHASED BY TWO BEARS, DROWN

Purebred Cattle, Frightened by Bruins, Jump Over Cliff Into Mississippi River

FARMERS ARM IN TREK
Will Hunt Down Animals to Prevent Further Loss to Stock by Hungry Bears

Chased by two huge bears, believed hungry enough to kill, seven purebred cows became frightened and jumped headlong over a 30 foot cliff on the bank of the Mississippi river and were drowned, according to word received here today.

The cattle was the property of Geo. Adcock, Perry Lake township farmer. While the incident was not witnessed tracks on the ground revealed that the bears had chased the cattle a considerable distance and had even followed to the edge of the precipice.

Farmers of the locality have armed themselves and are determined to kill the animals before they do further damage to their stock.

TRUNK HIGHWAYS GENERALLY GOOD

Trunk highways throughout the state are as good as they have been any time this year, according to the weekly road condition report issued by the State Highway department today. On most of the gravel roads the recent rains have helped to pack and bind the surface material and have facilitated the work of the maintenance crews. There are exceptions on some routes of recent construction, or where work is in progress. Some of these are reported only fair or poor.

Each week some of the detours made necessary by summer construction are removed.

FAMOUS BULL BROUGHT TO THE MIDDLE WEST

DeCremCo Calamity Posch 511887, recognized as one of the greatest bulls in Holstein history, was purchased by E. H. Maytag September 29 from the Detroit Creamery Farms of Mt. Clemens, Michigan, where he has been the featured sire of their great herd of 1000 registered Holsteins and has been brought to the Maytag farms in Iowa.

Although the price involved in the deal has not been made public, it is understood that the deal represented the largest expenditure that has been made for any bull in recent years. A son of this animal was sold for $10,000 last year at public auction.

This bull became nationally famous in 1927 when he was undefeated champion over a strong show circuit and was named the All-American junior yearling. Although he has not been in the show ring since that year he has developed into a 2600-pound bull of excellent type and is considered the leading contender for the honor for All American aged bull should he again be put on exhibition.

The SEA BRIDE THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

CHAPTER XLVII.

WILLIS had been asleep; he was in shirt and trousers, his belt tight-girted. He stared stupidly, not understanding. Dan'l, balked of his chance at Brander, took Willis for fair game. If he thought at all, it was to remember that Willis was a loyal to Faith. He attacked before Willis was fully awake, and bore the other man back into the cabin from which he had come.

Dan'l bent Willis against the bunk, so that for an instant it seemed the man's back would snap; but desperation gave Willis the strength to fling himself away. They whirled into the cabin, still fighting. Dan'l was drunk with his own rage by now. He had thrown himself into a debauch of battle; and he proved this night that he could fight when he chose.

He rocked Willis at last with a left-hand blow in the ribs, so that the younger man dropped his arms to hug his bruised body; and Dan'l drove home his fist to the other's jaw. The blow smacked loudly, and Willis fell without a sound.

If old Tichel had come down the companion-ladder a minute sooner he might have saved Willis, and he and Willis between them could have overcome Dan'l. But he was too late for that; he was in time to see Willis fall; and before he could speak, Dan'l Tobey had attacked him.

Dan'l was pure maniac now; he did not stop to ask whether Tichel was friend or foe. Tichel, old man though he was, was never one to refuse a battle. He met Dan'l's charge with the tigerish venom that characterized him in his rages; he leaped and was fairly in the air when Dan'l struck him. But Dan'l's greater weight and the impetus of his charge were too much for old Tichel. In the flash of a second Dan'l had him by the throat, banging his head against the floor till the skin of his scalp was crushed and the blood flowed, and Tichel at last lay still.

Dan'l got up, choking for breath, his chin down on his chest. There was blood on him; his shirt was torn; his hair was wild. The mild, round face of the man was distorted by wrinkles of passion. His lip was bruised by a blow, and it puffed out in a surly, drunken way. He stood there, tottering, looking with blinking eyes at the heap of men fighting at one side of the cabin.

Brander was in that heap somewhere. Dan'l stepped unsteadily toward the heap of men, peered down at them, and laid hands on them to pull them away. They were too closely intertwined.

He backed off and looked around for a weapon. In a corner of the cabin he saw something that might serve. It was the head of a killing-lance—a bar of metal three or four feet long, flattened at one end like the blade of a putty-knife, and ground to the keenest edge. For use, it would be mounted on a staff; but there was no staff in it now. He picked the thing up, balanced it in his hands, and walked gingerly back toward the struggling knot of men.

When Brander dropped down into the cabin, and through the open door saw Faith in Dan'l's arms, he was paralyzed for an instant. Then, as rage surged up in him, he sensed the danger above him, and dodged to one side as Silva leaped against Brander's hip, his knife slitting the air. Brander was thrown headlong, and Silva flung after him. Brander rolled on his back, catching Silva in the stomach with both feet, as the other two men dropped across his body.

He had put little force into his kick at Silva, so that the man was unhurt. Brander gripped one of the men who had fallen on him, and whirled him under. At the same time, the other man attached himself to Brander's back, his right arm about Brander's neck to choke him. Brander wedged his chin down and gripped this arm between his chin and his breast, holding it off a little from his throat. Then Silva came at him from the left side, and Brander's left hand flung out and gripped Silva's knife-wrist.

Brander was past the first flush of anger; he was cool now as he was always cool in danger. Save Silva, the men against him were unarmed. At any rate, neither made any effort to use a weapon. Therefore Brander flung the one man out of his arms, and gave his attention to Silva.

He was just in time. Silva had shifted the knife to his other biting far up into the soft flesh at the bottom of the mouth. He got a grip on this bone that would hold; and the man screamed, and Brander jerked him up and over his shoulder. The man slid helplessly, tearing at Brander's clenched fingers.

Brander at this time was sitting up with Silva at his left, arms gripping, fists striking, and the other man at the right. The man whose jaw he held came down in Brander's lap. He brought his right knee up with all his force against the other's head, and the man became a dead weight across his legs. Brander wriggled free of him. He thought calmly that one of the three was gone and only two remained, and turned his attention to the others.

He had been forced to let them have their will of him for the seconds required to deal with the man who had choked him. They had him down now on his back on the cabin floor—one on either side of him. He got a left-hand grip on the seaman; he set his right hand on Silva's arm, and his fingers hand. Brander grappled for it, and the blade slid along his fingers, barely scratching them. Then he had the hand that held it; and he dragged it down and wrenched it over, and the fingers opened and the knife fell.

Brander groped for it, Silva swarming over him. He got the knife, but knew he could not use it, so he threw it with the half of his arm which was free. Crushed down by the men atop him, he saw that it slid across the floor and flew into the after cabin.

Brander had not seen Dan'l when the man came first to crouch above them. Dan'l was at Willis when Brander threw the knife. That weapon being gone, Brander turned his attention to the man who had his throat. He worked as coolly as if this man were his only antagonist. While he held off the others with his left hand and his knees, his right hand went up over his shoulder and forced the face of the man who choked him. This groping hand of his came down against the man's face from above. His palm rested against the cheek of his antagonist; his thumb against the chin. His fingers groped under the other's jaw-bone and clinched around it, clenched on Silva's biceps. He flung them off a little, freeing himself so that he might have fought to his feet.

But when he thrust these two back thus, to right and left, and started to sit up, he saw Dan'l Tobey above him—Dan'l, with an insane light in his eyes, and the whaling lance poised in a thrusting position. The heavy weapon flickered downward like a shaft of light.

Brander wrenched with all his strength at Silva; he swung Silva up and over his own body just in time to intercept the lance. It slid in between Silva's ribs, an inch from the backbone, and pierced him through to the sternum. It struck obliquely and cut half-way into the mingled cartilage and bone. Then the soft iron of the shaft "elbowed" at right angles, and Dan'l had to twist and fight to pull it free.

Silva, of course, was dead. Brander flung the corpse aside, rolling after it to be on his feet before Dan'l should strike again. But the remaining seaman was in his path; they clinched, straining breast to breast.

the building. Both were hurled to the floor but escaped injury.

Hearing the screams of the injured, Holtzman and Kaplan started rescue work at once.

Wreckage was strewn about in great piles and firemen searched for persons believed to be seriously injured and buried under debris.

The explosion occurred on the fourth floor of the 11-story building. Flames that followed the blast quickly were brought under control.

A strike has been in force among certain unions in the garment trade for more than a month.

Firemen entered the building to put out the blaze and to search for additional victims. They found that the concrete connecting walls in the building were broken down.

Nature's Protection
The bureau of fisheries says that shrimps do not throw off a secretion which discolors the water, but that this fluid is discharged by the squids, which frequently travel in schools of shrimps. This discharge is a thin black fluid which occurs in sacs in the bodies of all octopods, and is used as a protection to enable the animal to escape when being pursued.

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING
CRUISE

CHAPTER XLVII.
WILLIS had been asleep; he was in shirt and trousers, his belt tight-girted. He stared stupidly, not understanding.

Dan'l, balked of his chance at Brander, took Willis for fair game. If he thought at all, it was to remember that Willis was loyal to Faith. He attacked before Willis was fully awake, and bore the other man back into the cabin from which he had come.

Dan'l bent Willis against the bunks, so that for an instant it seemed the man's back would snap; but desperation gave Willis the strength to fling himself away. They whirled into the cabin, still fighting. Dan'l was drunk with his own rage by now. He had thrown himself into a debauch of battle, and he proved this night that he could fight when he chose.

He rocked Willis at last with a left-hand blow in the ribs, so that the younger man dropped his arms to hug his bruised body; and Dan'l drove home his fist to the other's jaw. The blow smacked loudly, and Willis fell without a sound.

If old Tichel had come down the companion-ladder a minute sooner he might have saved Willis, and he and Willis between them could have overcome Dan'l. But he was too late for that; he was in time to see Willis fall; and before he could speak, Dan'l Tobe had attacked him.

Dan'l was pure mania now; he did not stop to ask whether Tichel was friend or foe. Tichel, old man though he was, was never one to refuse a battle. He met Dan'l's charge with the tigerish venom that characterized him in his rages; he leaped and was fairly in the air when Dan'l struck him. But Dan'l's greater weight and the impetus of his charge were too much for old Tichel. In the flash of a second Dan'l had him by the throat, banging his head against the floor till the skin of his scalp was crushed and the blood flowed, and Tichel at last lay still.

Dan'l got up, choking for breath, his chin down on his chest. There was blood on him; his shirt was torn; his hair was wild. The mild, round face of the man was distorted by wrinkles of passion. His lip was bruised by a blow, and it puffed out in a surly, drunken way. He stood there, tottering, looking with blinking eyes at the heap of men fighting on one side of the cabin.

Brander was in that heap somewhere. Dan'l stepped unsteadily toward the heap of men, peered down at them, and laid hands on them to pull them away. They were too closely intertwined.

He backed off and looked around for a weapon. In a corner of the cabin he saw something that might serve. It was the head of a killing-lance—a bar of metal three or four feet long, flattened at one end like the blade of a putty-knife, and ground to the keenest edge. For use, it would be mounted on a staff; but there was no staff in it now. He picked the thing up, balanced it in his hands, and walked gingerly back toward the struggling knot of men.

When Brander dropped down into the cabin, and through the open door saw Faith in Dan'l's arms, he was paralyzed for an instant. Then, as rage surged up in him, he sensed the danger above him, and dodged to one side as Silva leaped down from the deck. Silva struck against Brander's hip, his knife slitting the air. Brander was thrown headlong, and Silva flung after him. Brander rolled on his back, catching Silva in the stomach with both feet, as the other two men dropped across his body.

He had put little force into his kick at Silva, so that the man was unhurt. Brander gripped one of the men who had fallen on him, and whirled him under. At the same time, the other man attached himself to Brander's back, his right arm about Brander's neck to choke him. Brander wedged his chin down and gripped his arm between his chin and his breast, holding it off a little from his throat. Then Silva came at him from the left side, and Brander's left hand flung out and gripped Silva's knife-wrist.

Brander was past the first flush of anger; he was cool now as he was always cool in danger. Save Silva, the men against him were unarmed. At any rate, neither made any effort to use a weapon. Therefore Brander flung the one man out of his arms, and gave his attention to Silva.

He was just in time. Silva had shifted the knife to his other biting far up into the soft flesh at the bottom of the mouth. He got a grip on this bone that would hold; and the man screamed, and Brander jerked him up and over his shoulder. The man slid helplessly, tearing at Brander's clenched fingers.

Brander at this time was sitting up with Silva at his left, arms gripping, fists striking, and the other man at the right. The man whose jaw he held came down in Brander's lap. He brought his right knee up with all his force against the other's head, and the man became a dead weight across his legs. Brander wriggled free of him. He thought calmly that one of the three was gone and only two remained, and turned his attention to the others.

He had been forced to let them have their will of him for the seconds required to deal with the man who had choked him. They had him down now on his back on the cabin floor—one on either side of him. He got a left-hand grip on the seaman; he set his right hand on Silva's arm, and his fingers hand. Brander grappled for it, and the blade slid along his fingers, barely scratching them. Then he had the hand that held it; and he dragged it down and wrenched it over, and the fingers opened and the knife fell.

Brander groped for it, Silva swarming over him. He got the knife, but knew he could not use it, so he threw it with the half of his arm which was free. Crushed down by the men atop him, he saw that it slid across the floor and flew into the after cabin.

Brander had not seen Dan'l when the man came first to crouch above them. Dan'l was at Willis when Brander threw the knife. That weapon being gone, Brander turned his attention to the man who had his throat. He worked as coolly as if this man were his only antagonist. While he held off the others with his left hand and his knees, his right hand went up over his shoulder and found the face of the man who choked him. This groping hand of his came down against the man's face from above. His palm rested against the cheek of his antagonist; his thumb against the chin. His fingers groped under the other's jaw-bone and clinched around it, clenched on Silva's biceps. He flung them off a little, freeing himself so that he might have fought to his feet.

But when he thrust these two back thus, to right and left, and started to sit up, he saw Dan'l Tobe above him—Dan'l, with an insane light in his eyes, and the whaling lance poised in a thrusting position. The heavy weapon flickered downward like a shaft of light.

Brander wrenched with all his strength at Silva; he swung Silva up and over his own body just in time to intercept the lance. It slid in between Silva's ribs, an inch from the backbone, and pierced him through to the sternum. It struck obliquely and cut half-way into the mingled cartilage and bone. Then the soft iron of the shaft "elbowed" at right angles, and Dan'l had to twist and fight to pull it free.

Silva, of course, was dead. Brander flung the corpse aside, rolling after it to be on his feet before Dan'l should strike again. But the remaining seaman was in his path; they clinched, straining breast to breast.

the building. Both were hurled to the floor but escaped injury.

Hearing the screams of the injured, Holtzman and Kaplan started rescue work at once.

Wreckage was strewn about in great piles and firemen searched for persons believed to be seriously injured and buried under debris.

The explosion occurred on the fourth floor of the 11-story building. Flames that followed the blast quickly were brought under control.

A strike has been in force among certain unions in the garment trade for more than a month.

Firemen entered the building to put out the blaze and to search for additional victims. They found that the concrete connecting walls in the building were broken down.

Nature's Protection

The bureau of fisheries says that shrimps do not throw off a secretion which discolors the water, but that this fluid is discharged by the squids, which frequently travel in schools of shrimps. This discharge is a thin black fluid which occurs in sacs in the bodies of all octopods, and is used as a protection to enable the animal to escape when being pursued.
